click my heels
empty hallway echoes
my breath
squeak of rainy sneakers
my fingers snapping tapping
slapping
swish of my skirt,
my cords,
my nylon bag
doors lock, unlock, lock crack my knuckles, my neck quick snap of an elastic the zipping, unzipping
of my jacket
snaps on my pocket
shuffling of sheet music
an ill-timed sneeze
cough
laugh
my breath
my heartbeat
no body is a symphony

i swear to god

i spend my whole life in here. . .

it's about a place. . .

got that one from my mother's '77 yearbook.
It's covered in burlap and all the text rhymes.
Maybe next year.

The editor will now proceed to pour forth a voluble and incoherent stream of thank-yous, hoping to god that she doesn't miss anybody cause she doesn't want to be lynched. But that is probably inevitable. sigh. Thanks go to SARA the GODDESS, the diva, the beautiful wonderful incredibly sexy, and the layout editor to boot. Thanks also to Gloria and Rachel for coping with my flakiness and translating for me to the photo staff. Thank you Chad for making the yearbook computer functional again and for hugs when i went emotionally overboard. Thanks to Amanda - you are a constant inspiration, honey. Thanks to Patrick because he gives me a reason besides yearbook to be frustrated (and because he apolgizes so nicely). Thanks to Constance for alerting me to the dastardly penguin plot. Thanks to Jim and Bob, from Davor and Jostens respectively. for being tolerant of my total and complete ignorance. Thanks to my roommated Jen for being alive. Thanks to my mother and my father, for being there. Thanks to the squirrels for providing me with a whole set of role models. Thanks to the Fed-Ex people, not that i've actually ever talked with one but you can bet that i'm going to go out and hug the next one i find. And finally, a huuuuge round of applause for Ms. Julie Davis, the instructor of ARTS105, for moving the quiz to Monday. Kisses to everybody! This letter has been brought to you by the letter S and the number 5. Use them well!

Improvisational Yearbook:

a photo essay by westen and sara

Once upon a time, a small group of dedicated students decided to make a yearbook (see current publication in your hand). Through trials and tribulations, through failing classes and assaulting the fed-ex guy, the staff had made it to the FINAL DEADLINE!!! HURRAY!!! However, the staff and numbers of photos had dwindled down to approximately, well, three. Total. Which makes it hard to make a, oh, lets say, FACULTY SECTION.

Nonetheless, the editors put their heads together, begged and pleaded for more photographs and for the cooperation of the faculty, and resulted in....like we said, three photographs.

Luckily, what the editorial staff lacked in photos they made up for in creativity and wit. So, we bring you, not the faculty section but a section of the faculty, as it were.

Enjoy,

Westen and Sara (who are really hoping you're laughing as you read this. and by the way, if you're not, remember that YOU didn't take the faculty shots either, so there)

How to Make a Yearbook: A Case Study of the (lack of) Faculty Section

1. Locate the faculty. Use a map if necessary. Helpful hint: Don't go to the faculty meetings, they don't either; or they're held at 5 in the morning in the middle of the woods.

fig. 1

2. Locate your photo staff. Remind them that people should be in pictures, not artsy things we don't get.

fig. 2

3. Beg photo staff to set up faculty shots. With every contact sheet, ask why there are no faculty shots. Be assured it will be "taken care of."

fig. 3

We, the yearbook staff, would like to offer our thanks to the staff members who made the effort to have their pictures taken. It is our sincere opinion that these wonderful, sexy people should be given a collective raise, or at least a commemorative mug. We love you all.

the art department - god bless them all, even and especially the baby.

the piano department. They are cute and fuzzy.

the chemistry department. Smiley happy people.

the history department. Kisses to them all!

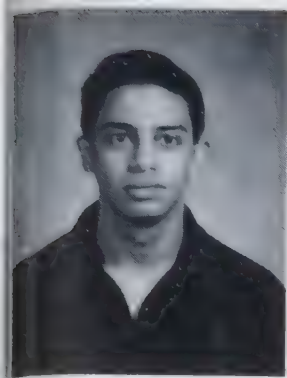

and the biology department. may they live and thrive forever.

Things to NOT have in pictures:

1. The backs of people's heads. It's bad enough to stare at them in Stevenson, let alone capturing them forever in the yearbook.

2. Also, if you do take a picture of a person's head, make sure their head is ALL the way in the photo.

3. Movement is artsy.
Too much movement makes us seasick.

fig. 3

4. Last we heard, Oberlin currently had an enrollment of about 3,000 students and ZERO household pets. However, we do make exceptions to this rule: you find somebody that keeps a Komodo dragon, then we'll find that dragon a spot in the yearbook. Guaranteed.

fig. 4

5. Buildings are potentially interesting subjects. Nature is a potentially interesting subject. Nature blocking buildings is just silly.

6. Still lifes = art.
Random stuff on your self = random stuff on your shelf.
